ABOUT THE AUTHOR

As a specialist in internal communication, Jenni Field has worked with organizations for many years, helping them understand how it can have real influence and impact on the everyday. She helps business leaders understand how to get their teams to work better – issues in their operations are diagnosed so they can work more efficiently and the chaos is then fixed by implementing tactics that will give the desired results.

Jenni set up her own consultancy after realizing that to do what is needed in organizations, you need the ability to be honest and have trust in relationships with leaders. As a consultant, she can do this. She has read, researched, interviewed and explored the business world through the eyes of a professional communicator and it has become clear to her that internal communication is the foundation for a strong organization.
