

CONTENTS

List of figures and tables x

Preface: Read this first xi

- 01 Making the case for employee communication 1
- Chapter objectives 1
 - What exactly is employee communication? 2
 - Context matters for employee communication 3
 - Defining employee communication 3
 - Where does the employee communicator's value lie? 4
 - The content producer 5
 - Behaviour drivers 6
 - Supporters and facilitators 7
 - Asset growing 8
 - Choosing your own value proposition 9
 - Defining the value you add through employee communication 10
 - Getting the basics right 12
 - Driving outcomes 13
 - Supporting others 13
 - Asset builders 14
 - It's not one or the other 15
 - Conclusion 15
 - References 16
- 02 Conducting your own employee communication audit 18
- Chapter objectives 18
 - Why bother reviewing your employee communication? 19
 - A few pitfalls with auditing employee communication 20
 - The audit wheel – a simple guide to what to look at 21
 - Communication effectiveness – are we doing the right things? 21
 - Constructing the audit: Research methods 32
 - Conclusion 36
 - Notes 36
 - References 37

- 03 Setting objectives for employee communication plans: Considerations, frameworks and examples 39
- Chapter objectives 39
 - Wants, needs and problems 40
 - Giving stakeholders what they want 40
 - How might communicators be contributing? 41
 - The most valuable thing you can do at this point is help define the problem 41
 - Changing the conversation: Adopting a consultant mindset 44
 - Setting out the route: The ARROW framework 45
 - Managing concerns 47
 - So, you've helped your stakeholder explore the problem to be solved. Now what? 50
 - The core business/organizational aim 50
 - The communication objectives: Do, feel, know 51
 - Employee behaviours: What do you need people to do? Who needs to do it? 52
 - Employee perceptions/mindsets/attitudes/values/beliefs: How would you like people to feel? 52
 - Employee knowledge and understanding: What would you like people to know? 53
 - Using research to fill the gaps 53
 - Making communication objectives SMART 54
 - So, where are we now? 55
 - A final word on flexibility 56
 - Conclusion 57
 - References and further reading 57
- 04 Understanding your audiences: What practitioners do in practice 58
- Chapter objectives 58
 - Let's start with a quick test 59
 - Know your place 62
 - The essentials we all need to know 65
 - Segmentation 66
 - Segments with personality 70
 - Where to get your audience data 74
 - Conclusion 76
 - References 76

- 05 Messaging: Managing meaning 78
Chapter objectives 78
Frame, narrative, message 78
It all starts with framing 81
Narratives connect 82
Getting your message straight 91
Conclusion 98
Notes 99
References 99
- 06 Choosing channels for employee communication:
Finding inspiration from others 100
Chapter objectives 100
Why every organization needs a good toolbox 101
First steps in reviewing your channels infrastructure: Five questions from our case studies 104
Changing channels and introducing new ones: Five tips from our case studies 107
Tone, content and earning attention: Five lessons from our case studies 110
Five reasons why employee voice matters 113
Conclusion 117
Notes 117
References and further reading 117
- 07 Line managers as communicators: How to help them
add the most value 118
Chapter objectives 118
Seeing it from the leader's perspective 118
Briefings, cascades and 'getting the message out' 119
But what does it mean? And why should I care? 120
Putting theory into practice: How can leaders add the most value? 120
Busting a myth: People don't always want to hear it from 'my line manager' 121
So what do leaders who communicate well, do? 129
What about cultural variations? 130
Building leaders' communication competence: Training and coaching 130

Training topics to consider 131
Creating the right environment: Make it easy 135
Why does it matter? Investing time and energy in leadership communication 138
References 140

08 Making it happen: Making sure your great ideas see the light of day 142

Chapter objectives 142
Why is employee communication so difficult (for some of us)? 142
The big five EC facilitators 143
Bringing value into focus 146
Playing the right communications role 146
Processes that work 148
Networking and collaborating 156
Competencies: What it takes to do the job 158
Conclusion 159
References 160

09 Employee communication planning for change 161

Chapter objectives 161
When a plan comes together 162
Why does change feel difficult? 167
How do we change behaviours? 173
Conclusion 179
Note 180
References 180

10 Sharing the bad news: Communication in tough times 181

Chapter objectives 181
It's not always sunshine and roses 181
Why should an EC professional care about bad news? 182
Let's just tell them it's not as bad as they think 183
Thinking about breaking bad news – some principles 187
It's how you say it... 191
The announcement 192
Preparing leaders and managers 193

Building your bad news muscles 195
Look after yourself 196
Conclusion 196
Note 197
References 197

11 Is it working? Employee communication evaluation and measurement that adds value 198

Chapter objectives 198
Why should we bother with communication evidence? 198
What specifically should a communicator look at? 203
Owning your own data 210
Analysis and insight 213
Reporting for action 214
Conclusion 215
Notes 215
References 216

12 Communicating on purpose: Helping employees find meaning in the modern workplace 217

Chapter objectives 217
Why does purpose matter, for people and organizations? 218
What exactly is a purpose? 218
How can communicators work with purpose? 221
The need for authenticity: Working with purpose for the right reasons 224
Making purpose personal 226
Conclusion 228
References 229

Index 230