Acknowledgements

This book is the fruit of not only practical experience, but also extensive research that would not have been possible, in particular with respect to the American jurisprudence and doctrine, without the assistance of students of Boston University School of Law and Pace University School of Law, who over the course of seven years, collected this documentation. I wish to thank them for their diligent efforts.

I also express my warmest thanks to Jessica Bannon Vanto and Charlotte Villeneuve, associates in my firm, who reviewed the manuscript and provided me with judicious comments.

This book would not have come to pass without the valuable help of my devoted assistant, Sophie Vandewalle, who assumed the burden of transcribing and correcting the manuscript in its entirety. To her, I express my sincerest gratitude.

Finally, I thank all of my colleagues and friends in this marvellous world of arbitration, who during the many conferences and seminars, through their comments, questions and observations, helped me to better understand the issues dealt with in this work.
