
CONTENTS

About the Editors	xi
About the Authors	xiii
Introduction	xix
 CHAPTER 1
General Scope of Discovery	1
By Jennifer Fletcher and Nkoyo-Ene Effiong
I. Introduction	1
II. Identify the Forum and Applicable Rules	2
A. Court Rules	2
B. Mandatory Disclosure Rules	4
C. Scope of Discovery Allowed under AAA and Other Arbitral Rules	5
III. Develop a Discovery Plan and Budget	5
A. Identification of Claims	5
1. Disputed Issues	5
2. Factual Issues	6
B. Legal Issues	6
1. Construction Contracts	7
2. Common Law	7
3. Statutory and Regulatory	7
C. Sources of Information	8
1. Individuals with Knowledge	8
2. Documents	11
3. Public Information	12
D. Assembly of Documents and Database Development	13
1. Document Maintenance	13
2. Database Maintenance	16
3. Identifying and Protecting Privileged Documents	17
E. Early Steps to Preserve Information and Evidence	18
F. Informal Witness Discovery	18
G. Consultants and Expert Witnesses	19
H. Discovery Sequence	20
I. Budget Considerations	22

CHAPTER 2

Prelitigation Discovery23
By W. Stephen Dale and Owen S. Walker

I. Discovery without a Lawsuit. 23
 A. The Internet: An Open Source for All Contract Types 24
 B. Private Commercial Contracts versus Government Contracts 25

II. Prelitigation Discovery on Public Contracts 25
 A. Federal: Freedom of Information Act. 25
 B. State Law: “Little FOIAs” 30
 C. Sunshine Acts and Open-Meetings Laws 30

III. Prelitigation Discovery in Private Contract Disputes. 32

IV. Obtaining and Preserving Witness Testimony without Filing Suit 33
 A. Testimony of Others: Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 27 and Its State Counterparts. 33
 1. History 34
 2. Modern Rule-Based Prelitigation Depositions 35
 3. State Counterparts to Rule 27 37
 B. Preserving Project Information—Sworn Statements 37
 C. Interviewing Opposing Witnesses. 38

V. Preparing Project Records for Anticipated Litigation 41
 A. Document Control and File Inventory 41
 B. “Do Not Destroy” Warnings. 41

CHAPTER 3

Limits on Discovery45
By W. Alexander Moseley and Craig Campbell

I. Introduction 45

II. The General Principles 46

III. Relevancy 47

IV. Privilege 48
 A. Applicable Law 49
 B. Choice of Law Issues 50
 1. Federal or State Law in Federal Court. 50
 2. Election among States’ Privilege Law 50
 C. Potentially Significant Privileges in Construction Cases 52
 1. Attorney-Client. 52
 2. Joint Defense Privilege 55
 3. Mediation Privilege 61
 4. Privileges Relating to Individual Parties or Witnesses 61

V. Work Product Protection or “Privilege” 65
 A. Rule 26(b)(3), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure: What Is “Work Product”? .. 65
 B. Qualified Protection for Ordinary Work Product 68
 C. “Absolute” Protection for Opinion Work Product 69

VI. Assertion and Preservation of Privileges and Work Production Protection 70
 A. Rules 26, 33, and 34, Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 70
 B. The “Privilege Log” 71

C. Waiver	71
1. Waiver by Voluntary Disclosure to Persons outside the Privileged Relationship	72
2. Waiver by Inadequate Assertion of the Privilege	76
3. Waiver by Disclosure or Production to Adversary	79
4. Waiver by “Placing in Issue”	82
VII. Protection for Nontestifying Experts	85
A. Rule 26(b)(4)(D), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	85
B. Distinctions between Types of Nontestifying Experts	86
VIII. Other Objections to Discovery	86
A. Rules 26(b)(2) and 26(c), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	86
B. Specific Objections	87
1. Confidential Matter or Trade Secrets.	87
2. Cumulative or Duplicative Discovery	89
3. Unreasonable Burdensomeness or Expense.	90
4. “Annoyance, Embarrassment, Oppression”	90
5. Vagueness, Overbreadth	91
6. Improper Purpose	91
 APPENDIX A	 93
 APPENDIX B	 102
 APPENDIX C	 103
 CHAPTER 4
Discovery of Documents and Things and Entry on Premises	109
By John M. Cook and Keeley A. McCarty
I. Introduction	109
II. The Fundamentals of Document Discovery	110
A. Possession, Custody, or Control	110
B. Custodians, File Location, and Organization of the Client’s Documents	111
1. Duty to Preserve.	111
2. Project Personnel and Documents	111
3. Former Employees	113
C. Your Client’s Understanding of Opponent’s Documents.	113
III. Review of Client’s Documents/Protecting Privileged Items from Disclosure.	114
A. Document Review.	114
B. Privilege Review	115
IV. Starting Discovery of Documents and Things	116
A. Preparing a Discovery Plan.	116
B. Briefing the Discovery Team	117
C. Document Requests.	118
1. Propounded Requests	118
2. Received Requests	119
3. Document Production in Ongoing Projects	120
D. Nonparty Production	122

vi CONTENTS

V. Review of Documents Produced by Opponent and Third Parties 122

VI. Entry on Land 124

VII. Follow-Up Discovery 125

 A. Prompt Review of the Documents Produced 125

 B. Understanding the Responding Party’s File-Management System 125

 1. Sources for File-Management Information 126

 2. Deposing a Custodian of Records 126

VIII. Resolving Document Discovery Disputes and Rule 37 127

 A. Good-Faith Effort to Resolve Discovery Disputes 127

 B. Motion to Compel Documents and Things 127

 C. Expenses/Sanctions 128

 D. Failure to Comply with a Court Order 128

 E. Spoliation 128

IX. Conclusion 130

CHAPTER 5

Electronic Discovery 131

By Jennifer A. Mahar

I. Introduction to Electronic Discovery 131

II. The Decision to Pursue Electronic Discovery 132

III. Sources of Electronically Stored Information 132

 A. E-Mail 133

 B. Document Database 133

 C. Accounting Software 133

 D. Desktop and Laptop Computers 133

 E. Backup Systems 133

 F. Other Electronic Data Storage 134

 1. Voicemail, Telephone, and Fax Machine Logs 134

 2. Tablet Computers and Smartphones 134

 3. Social Media and Instant Messaging Databases 134

IV. Electronic Data Retention Policies 134

 A. E-mail Retention Policies 135

 1. Company E-Mail Accounts 135

 2. Personal E-Mail Accounts 135

 B. The Golden Hour for Preservation: Avoiding Spoliation 135

 C. Backup Files 136

V. Discovery Conference and Interrogatories 136

VI. Requests for Production of Documents Concerning Electronically Stored Information 137

 A. Defining the Scope 139

 B. How ESI Should Be Requested 140

 C. The E-Mail Dilemma 142

 D. Who Bears the Costs for E-Discovery? 143

VII. What to Do with All of This ESI? 144

 A. Optical Character Recognition & Metadata 145

 B. Introduction to Electronic Databases 145

 1. Coding from Metadata 145

 2. Issue Coding within the Summary Fields 145

 3. Predictive Coding 145

VIII. ESI as Evidence	146
IX. Other Issues—Spoliation	147
 CHAPTER 6
Discovery by Interrogatories	149
By William G. Geisen and Jessica A. Hill
I. Introduction	149
II. Authority	150
III. Purposes of Interrogatories	150
A. Advantages	151
1. Interrogatories Obtain Information from Multiple Sources of Knowledge	151
2. Interrogatories Advantageously Request Information about the Structure or Operations of a Business	151
3. Interrogatories May Be More Cost Effective Than Depositions	151
4. A Well-Drafted Interrogatory Is Difficult to Evade	151
5. Interrogatories May Induce Early Settlement Talks or Successful Summary Judgment Motions	152
6. Interrogatories Gather Information Not Easily Verbalized or Located in One Document	152
B. Limitations and Disadvantages	152
1. Interrogatories May Only Be Directed to the Parties in a Civil Action	152
2. Attorneys Usually Craft the Answers	152
3. The Creation of a Chain Reaction	152
4. The Process Can Be Slow and Expensive in Complex Cases	152
5. Inability to Ask Effective Follow-Up Interrogatories	153
6. Interrogatories May Help the Opposing Party Prepare for Trial	153
7. Interrogatories Cannot Determine the Nature and Effectiveness of Possible Witnesses for Trial	153
IV. Use and Abuse of Interrogatories	153
A. Identification of Knowledgeable Persons and Witnesses	154
B. Identification of Experts	154
C. Technical or Statistical Data	155
D. Damages	155
E. Contention Interrogatories	156
V. Coordination and Sequencing with Other Discovery Methods	157
VI. Practice Pointers	158
A. Interrogatories	158
1. Limit the Use of Form Interrogatories	159
2. Avoid Overuse of Definition and Instruction Sections	159
3. Use Predicate Interrogatories	159
4. Be Wary of Interrogatories Calling for Large Narrative Responses	160
5. Carefully Draft Contention Interrogatories	160
6. Avoid Obvious Objections	160
B. Answers	160
VII. Objections	161
VIII. Supplementation	163
IX. Conclusion	164

CHAPTER 7

Discovery by Depositions165*By Robert M. Connolly, Steven M. Henderson, and Zachary D. Jones*

I. Introduction	165
II. Authority for Taking and Conducting Depositions	165
III. Number and Duration of Depositions	166
IV. Who May Attend the Deposition	168
V. Advantages of Depositions	170
VI. Selecting Deponents	171
VII. Coordination and Sequencing with Other Discovery Methods	173
VIII. Attorney Preparation	174
A. When Deposing	174
B. When Defending	175
IX. Witness Preparation	175
A. The “Client” Witness	175
B. Nonparty Witnesses	176
C. Protecting Privileged Communications and Work Product	177
X. The Expert Witness	177
A. Deposing the Opposing Expert	177
B. Communications with Your Experts	180
C. Defending Your Expert’s Deposition	181
XI. Objections	182
A. Stipulations and Reservations	182
B. Attorney-Client Communications	183
C. Work Product	183
D. Other Objections	184
XII. Use of Depositions	184
A. The Unavailable Witness	184
B. Prior and Consistent Statements; Impeachment	184
XIII. Conclusion	185

CHAPTER 8

Discovery outside the United States187*By Peter C. Halls, John S. Vento, and Jonathan Rosshandler*

I. Foreign Legal Impediments to Discovery of Foreigners Who Are Parties in U.S. Litigation	188
A. Foreign Blocking Statutes	189
B. Foreign Secrecy Statutes	190
C. Effects of Pretrial Discovery of Foreign Parties in U.S. Litigation	191
1. First Stage: Compelling Discovery	191
2. Second Stage: Imposing Sanctions	193
D. U.S. Discovery Regarding Personal Jurisdiction over Foreign Defendants	194
II. Discovery from a Nonparty Who Is a U.S. National or Resident Located in a Foreign Country	197
A. Prerequisites for Court Order Authorizing Subpoena (28 U.S.C. § 1783(a))	197
B. Service of Subpoena (28 U.S.C. § 1783(b))	199
C. Sanctions for Failure to Comply with Subpoena	199

III. Discovery from Foreign Nonparties to U.S. Litigation	200
A. Voluntary Cooperative Discovery	201
B. Involuntary Discovery	203
IV. Discovery from U.S. Parties to Foreign and International Tribunals	205
A. Voluntary Cooperative Discovery	205
B. Involuntary Discovery	205
V. Telephone and Videorecorded Depositions in Transnational Litigation	206
A. Videorecorded Depositions	206
B. Telephonic and Videoconference Depositions	208
VI. Discovery in International Arbitration	210
A. Introduction	210
1. UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules	212
2. IBA Arbitration Rules	213
B. Common International Arbitration Associations	215
1. International Chamber of Commerce— International Court of Arbitration	218
2. London Court of International Arbitration	225
3. The International Center for the Settlement of Investment Disputes	228
4. The China International Economic Trade Arbitration Commission	231
5. Dubai International Arbitration Center	233
6. DIFC Arbitration Centre	234
7. Hong Kong International Arbitration Center	236
8. Singapore International Arbitration Center	240
9. International Center for Dispute Resolution (American Arbitration Association)	244
10. New York International Arbitration Center	247
APPENDIX	248
 CHAPTER 9
Sanctions Relating to Discovery	255
By W. Alexander Moseley and Craig Campbell
I. Introduction	255
II. The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	256
A. Rule 37	256
1. Sanctionable Conduct	256
2. Sanctions Available	261
3. Procedure	267
B. Rule 16(f)	268
C. Rule 26(g), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	271
D. Rule 30(d) and (g), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	274
E. Rule 41(b), Federal Rules of Civil Procedure	277
III. Punishment of Contempts	278
A. Classification of Contempts	279
B. Procedural Requirements	280
IV. Courts' "Inherent Powers"	281
V. Punishment for Multiplication of Proceedings under 28 U.S.C. § 1927	283

VI. Ethical Standards	284
A. Source of Standards	284
B. Control of Admission to Practice	285
C. Other Enforcement	286
VII. “Civility” Enforcement	286
A. Typical Problems of Incivility	286
B. Enforcement of “Civility”	287
VIII. Spoliation Remedies	288
IX. Discovery Sanctions in Arbitration	294

CHAPTER 10

Discovery in Arbitration Proceedings297

By W. Alexander Moseley

I. Introduction	297
II. Statutory Authority	297
III. Case Law	300
IV. Arbitration Rules	306
V. The Parties’ Arbitration Agreement	310
VI. Recommended Approaches	311
A. Negotiations with Other Parties	311
B. Arbitrator Selection Strategy	314
C. Arbitrator-Ordered Discovery	315
D. FOIA-Type Requests	316
E. Ancillary Litigation	317
F. Motion Practice	317
G. Alternatives to Formal Discovery	317
Table of Cases	319
Index	331

<http://www.pbookshop.com>