

CONTENTS—SUMMARY

Table of Cases	xix
Table of Legislation	lv
List of Abbreviations	lxxi
List of Contributors	lxxv
1. Introduction	1
PART I. PRIVATE LAW OBLIGATIONS OF CONFIDENCE AND PRIVACY
2. Misuse of Private Information	33
3. Contractual Confidence Claims	71
4. Breach of Confidence and Fiduciary Duty	93
5. Miscellaneous Causes of Action: Tort and Copyright	147
6. Actions Against Third Parties or Strangers	175
7. Judicial Remedies	193
8. Non-Judicial Remedies	244
PART II. DISCLOSURES JUSTIFIED OR COMPELLED BY LAW
9. Disclosure Justified in the Public Interest	255
10. Disclosure of Confidential Information Compelled by Statute	291
11. Compelled Disclosure to Assist an Official Investigation	340
12. Disclosure Justified by the Administration of Justice	404
13. Consent	429
14. Lapsed Confidentiality?	459

PART III. DATA PROTECTION
AND LEGAL PROFESSIONAL PRIVILEGE

15. Legal Professional Privilege	477
16. Data Protection and Freedom of Information	532

PART IV. OPEN JUSTICE AND PRIVACY

17. Open Justice, Privacy, and Limiting Use of Documents Disclosed in Litigation	583
Index	619

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

CONTENTS

Table of Cases	xix
Table of Legislation	lv
List of Abbreviations	lxxi
List of Contributors	lxxv

1. Introduction

A. Information	1.03
Information and data	1.03
Types of information: personal, commercial, governmental	1.04
Information and property distinguished	1.08
B. Confidentiality Obligations	1.12
Confidentiality and privacy distinguished	1.12
Types of confidentiality obligation	1.17
Data protection obligations	1.23
The impact of new technologies	1.28
Criminalization of breaches of confidentiality	1.33
C. Who Are the Parties?	1.40
Who owes the duty?	1.40
Who is owed the duty? Clients and 'examinees'	1.45
D. Compulsory Disclosure	1.51

PART I. PRIVATE LAW OBLIGATIONS
OF CONFIDENCE AND PRIVACY

2. Misuse of Private Information

A. Is there a Tort of Misuse of Private Information?	2.02
B. What Interests are Protected by Privacy?	2.10
A fourfold classification	2.10
Dignity, control of information, and autonomy	2.12
Implications for professionals	2.18
Corporate privacy	2.23
C. The Operation of the Wrong	2.26
To whom is the duty owed and for how long?	2.28
Is article 8 engaged?	2.31

Limiting factors	2.49
The balancing exercise	2.57
3. Contractual Confidence Claims
A. Contract Basics	3.01
B. Confidentiality as a Contractual Term	3.05
Express and implied terms	3.05
Restraint of trade	3.12
Relationship with equitable duties	3.22
C. Other Factors in the Scope of the Duty	3.23
Triviality	3.23
Information from third parties	3.24
Information by direct observation	3.26
Limits to the obligation	3.29
D. Duration of the Obligation of Confidentiality	3.35
E. Breach of the Obligation	3.38
4. Breach of Confidence and Fiduciary Duty
A. The Breach of Confidence Action	4.03
Justification for breach of confidence	4.04
The jurisdictional basis for confidence	4.16
The quality of confidence	4.18
Communicated so as to give rise to an obligation of confidentiality	4.27
Misuse	4.31
Public interest	4.32
Public domain	4.33
Who is owed the duty?	4.34
Relationship with the tort of misuse of private information	4.35
B. Fiduciary Relationships	4.38
When do fiduciary relationships arise?	4.39
Duration of fiduciary relationships	4.44
C. What are the Fiduciary Duties?	4.47
Business opportunities: fiduciaries	4.50
Duty–duty or client–client conflicts	4.62
5. Miscellaneous Causes of Action: Tort and Copyright
A. Negligence	5.02
Negligence basics	5.02
The choice of negligence over other causes of action	5.04
Duties to disclose under the tort of negligence	5.13

B. Defamation	5.14
Defamation basics	5.16
Application to improper disclosure of information	5.25
C. Injurious Falsehood	5.40
D. Economic Torts	5.42
Conspiracy	5.42
Inducing breach of contract	5.44
E. Copyright	5.45
F. Conversion	5.49
G. Misfeasance in Public Office	5.50
6. Actions Against Third Parties or Strangers
A. Third Party Liability after a Breach of Confidence	6.03
Breach of confidence: Can the client sue the third party?	6.04
Other causes of action: Dishonest assistance	6.10
Which cause of action is appropriate?	6.14
B. Intercepted Information	6.17
Breach of confidence: Can the client sue the interceptor or stranger?	6.17
Breach of confidence: Can the professional sue the interceptor or stranger?	6.21
Other causes of action	6.23
Can the professional (or employer) sue the employee?	6.25
C. Use of Breach of Confidence to Protect Privilege	6.26
D. Breach of Fiduciary Duty	6.33
E. Misuse of Private Information	6.34
7. Judicial Remedies
A. Injunctive Relief	7.02
General principles	7.02
Interim injunctions	7.03
Final injunctions	7.24
Special types of injunction	7.28
B. Financial Relief	7.35
Contract and tort (common law) compensatory damages	7.36
Aggravated and exemplary damages	7.49
Statutory damages under Lord Cairns' Act	7.55
Gain-based damages	7.63
Equitable compensation	7.82

C. Other Judicial Remedies	7.84
Delivery up	7.84
Termination for breach of contract	7.85
Constructive trusts	7.86
8. Non-Judicial Remedies
A. Complaints Procedures	8.02
B. Disciplinary Proceedings	8.03
C. Complaints Against the Media	8.13
PART II. DISCLOSURES JUSTIFIED OR COMPELLED BY LAW
9. Disclosure Justified in the Public Interest
A. Introduction	9.01
B. Legislative Gateways	9.02
Discretion to disclose client information	9.02
Confidential client information	9.05
C. The Public Interest and the European Convention on Human Rights	9.08
The balancing test	9.08
Commercial information	9.12
Private information	9.15
Article 8(2) and professionals	9.36
Confidential information in the hands of officials	9.74
10. Disclosure of Confidential Information Compelled by Statute
A. Introduction	10.01
Who is compelled?	10.05
Forms of compulsion	10.06
Compliance enforcement	10.23
B. Express Protection of Statutory or Private Law Confidentiality	10.24
Legal professional privilege	10.25
Privileged circumstances	10.33
Adverse effect on justice	10.35
Confidential information	10.36
Special procedure and excluded material	10.40
Self-incrimination	10.42
C. Express Negation of Statutory or Private Law Confidentiality	10.43
Confidential information	10.43

Legal professional privilege	10.46
Other privileges	10.50
D. Confidentiality and/or Legal Professional Privilege
Not Mentioned	10.52
Implied abrogation of legal professional privilege	10.53
Covert intelligence gathering of privileged information	10.57
Implied abrogation of confidentiality	10.61
E. Making the Disclosure and Notifying the Client	10.74
F. Compulsory Disclosure under Foreign Law	10.80
11. Compelled Disclosure to Assist an Official Investigation
A. Introduction	11.01
B. Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE 1984)	11.05
Introduction	11.05
Protected material	11.07
Access to excluded or special procedure material	11.23
Other means of obtaining access to protected material	11.44
Search following arrest	11.47
Warrants	11.53
C. Powers to 'Seize and Sift' Material: Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001	11.56
Introduction	11.56
The powers under section 50	11.58
D. Surveillance Powers	11.77
Introduction	11.77
Powers to 'bug and burgle'—Police Act 1997	11.79
Interception of communications	11.93
Covert surveillance	11.110
E. Specific Police Powers under other Statutes	11.121
Proceeds of Crime Act 2002	11.121
Terrorism Act 2000	11.138
Extradition Act 2003	11.150
F. Powers of HM Revenue and Customs	11.153
Taxes Management Act 1970	11.153
Value Added Tax Act 1994, Schedule 11	11.159
G. Other Powers	11.166
Companies Act 1985	11.166
Competition and Markets Authority (CMA)	11.172
Competition Act 1998	11.173
Enterprise Act 2002	11.186
The European Commission	11.189

12. Disclosure Justified by the Administration of Justice
A. Disclosure of Client Confidences During the Pre-trial Phase of the Civil Process	12.02
Obtaining a confidential document before initiation of proceedings	12.02
Obtaining production of a confidential document after initiation of proceedings	12.06
B. Disclosure at Trial	12.17
Documents	12.17
Oral evidence	12.19
Public interest immunity	12.34
Lawyer's duty to the court	12.43
C. Tribunals and Public Inquiries	12.46
Tribunals	12.46
Inquiries	12.48
13. Consent
A. Express Consent	13.03
Forms of consent	13.03
Informed consent	13.08
Duration of consent	13.12
B. Implied Consent	13.15
Agency relationships	13.16
In-house consultation and employees	13.18
Information sharing	13.20
Research, audit, and training	13.28
C. Capacity to Consent	13.33
Adult's mental incapacity to consent	13.33
Children	13.35
D. Defective Consent	13.41
Fraud	13.42
Duress: Illegitimate pressure	13.43
Undue influence	13.45
E. Waiver	13.47
Waiver as a defence to a private information claim	13.48
Relationship to waiver of privilege	13.55
14. Lapsed Confidentiality?
A. Introduction	14.01
B. Private Information	14.04
Death of client	14.04
Information in the public domain	14.15
C. Commercial and Official Secrets	14.20

PART III. DATA PROTECTION
AND LEGAL PROFESSIONAL PRIVILEGE

15. Legal Professional Privilege
A. The Origin and Nature of Legal Professional Privilege	15.01
Instrumental rationales	15.04
Rights-based justification	15.09
Legal professional privilege and the admissibility of evidence	15.10
Legal professional privilege and abuse of process	15.12
B. Scope of Legal Professional Privilege	15.14
Confidentiality	15.14
C. Legal Advice Privilege	15.49
What is legal advice?	15.49
Third party communications	15.55
Who speaks for the client, when the client is a large organization?	15.56
Communication for mixed purposes	15.62
D. Litigation Privilege	15.64
Preconditions	15.65
E. Duration of Legal Professional Privilege	15.70
F. Procedural Matters	15.72
G. Grounds for Opposing Legal Professional Privilege	15.74
Waivers	15.76
Iniquity (or 'nefarious purpose')	15.93
Statutory abrogation	15.99
Testamentary dispute	15.100
Legal professional privilege and trustees	15.101
Safety of a child	15.102
Innocence at stake	15.103
16. Data Protection and Freedom of Information
A. The Structure and Scope of Data Protection Law	16.02
B. First Data Protection Principle	16.10
Fairness of personal data processing	16.11
Information provided to the data subject	16.14
Legality of personal data processing	16.21
Schedule 2 'conditions' permitting processing of personal data	16.22
Conditions for processing sensitive personal data	16.31
C. Second Data Protection Principle	16.37
Disclosure for incompatible purposes	16.40
Permitted disclosures for incompatible purposes	16.43

D. Other Data Protection Principles	16.44
The fourth data protection principle	16.45
The fifth data protection principle	16.47
The sixth data protection principle	16.48
The seventh data protection principle	16.49
The eighth data protection principle	16.50
E. Exemptions to Data Protection Law	16.53
Section 35 (statutory authority and legal purposes)	16.54
Section 32 (journalism, literature, art)	16.55
Section 33 (research purposes)	16.58
Sections 28, 29, 31 (national security, regulatory activity, crime, and tax)	16.61
Freedom of Information Act exemptions	16.63
F. The Rights of the Data Subject	16.64
Subject access requests (SAR)	16.64
Prevention of processing likely to cause damage or distress	16.69
Prevention of automated decision-making	16.73
The rectification, blocking, erasure, and destruction of personal data	16.76
Prevention of processing for direct marketing	16.78
G. Data Protection Procedure and Enforcement	16.79
Compensation	16.82
H. The Data Protection Reform Package	16.87
The reform process	16.87
Substantive changes	16.88
New provisions	16.89
Changes to the criteria for lawful data processing and data protection safeguards	16.91
Procedural reforms	16.97
I. Freedom of Information	16.102
The Freedom of Information Act 2000	16.102
Requests for personal information	16.104
Exemptions for personal information	16.106
Information about the dead	16.107
Historical records	16.108
Kinds of exemptions	16.109
Enforcement	16.110

PART IV. OPEN JUSTICE AND PRIVACY

17. Open Justice, Privacy, and Limiting Use of Documents Disclosed in Litigation

A. Control of Documents	17.02
Limited disclosure and circulation	17.02
Collateral use of documents	17.10

Contents

Information disclosed during civil proceedings	17.15
Access to documentary evidence by non-parties	17.32
B. Restricting Publicity	17.38
Rationale for open justice	17.42
Hearing evidence in private	17.45
Anonymity orders	17.53
C. Reporting Restrictions	17.57
Reporting restrictions in criminal courts	17.58
Reporting restrictions in civil and family courts	17.65
Postponement of reporting	17.71
Index	619

<http://www.pbookshop.com>