

Contents

Preface	ix
I. Joining the Legal Profession
1. Town and gown	3
II. Professionalism and Professional Privilege
2. In memory of Mr Justice Charles Ching: One of the best advocates of our times	23
3. A clarification that did not clarify anything	30
III. Public Interest: Whose Interests?
4. David v Goliath: Reclamation of Victoria Harbour	37
5. The most misunderstood case: The Zhuhai Bridge case	51
6. Defending an unpopular cause: The social welfare case	55
7. The story of Eva: The foreign domestic helper case	67
8. Big brother is watching: Covert surveillance	77
IV. Equality before the Law: Law for the Rich and the Resourceful?
9. The Westies	85
10. The rich, the poor, and the sandwiched: Pro bono legal service	89
V. Presumption of Innocence
11. The Sham Shui Po drug addicts case	99
12. The best interest of the client: The MTR case	108
13. A confession that came too late	112
14. Disturbing the past and paralysing the future	115
VI. Fairness in Public Administration: What a Mess!
15. Right to legal representation	123
16. The three sisters	130
17. A duty to give reasons	135

VII. The Labyrinth of Legal Process and Civil Justice Reform

18. Justice delayed is justice denied 143
 19. Vexatious litigants 147

VIII. Free Speech

20. Human rights are not absolute: A right to defame? 153
 21. 'I do not report the matter to him': The paparazzi case 159

IX. Fair Hearing and Personal Liberty

22. Trial observers and humanitarian missions 177
 23. Liberty of the person 181

X. Law and Politics

24. The whole is more than the sum of its parts: The Shen Yun case 189
 25. The mysterious case of the missing documents 195
 26. My trip to Macau 212

XI. When the Law Is Absurd

27. Could we shoot the red light? 221
 28. Let's kill all the lawyers! When is a pigeon not a pigeon? 225

XII. Law and Moral Choices

29. Whose life is it anyway? 231
 30. When a woman is not a woman: The transgender case 237

- Index 245
 About the author 251