

Table of contents

Seismic shifts in the legal services industry

1. Introduction
2. Will the law firm of the future be a computer?
3. A diagnostic approach

The six classic drivers

1. Introduction
2. Old questions turned upside down
3. Diagnostic tools in a change-ready professional culture

Pricing – classic driver #1

1. A thought experiment: ten dollars per hour
2. Are your fees low enough to be competitive and high enough to be profitable?
3. Low pricing: an unsustainable strategy

4. Are your fees high enough?
5. Value, not price
6. An agenda for a value conversation
7. Escaping the squeeze

Productivity – classic driver #2

1. A thought experiment: the 80-hour day
2. Are you working too hard?
3. Is the billable hour obsolete?
4. What is the magic number?
5. Variation in productivity
6. The over-productive partner
7. Moving beyond the billable hour
8. Disruptive productivity

Realisation – classic driver #3

1. A thought experiment: collecting every penny
2. Leaving money in the street
3. Realisation as a diagnostic indicator
4. Better profits through better realisation

Cost management – classic driver #4

1. A thought experiment: operating a law firm for £50 per hour
2. Cost management in context
3. The temptation to slash costs
4. Pitfall number 1: not knowing what it costs to produce a legal service

5. Pitfall number 2: over-investment in multiple offices
6. Pitfall number 3: not keeping up with the technology
7. Pitfall number 4: ignoring partner performance issues
8. Pitfall number 5: slashing costs without managing risks

Staff compensation – classic driver #5

1. A thought experiment: associate compensation in 2030?
2. Are associates becoming inherently unprofitable?
3. Looking through the wrong end of the telescope
4. It's not about the money
5. Improving associate profitability now
6. Money into the bottomless pit

Leverage – classic driver #6

1. A thought experiment: 40-to-1 leverage?
2. Finding the fulcrum
3. Technology, workflow leverage and the future of the law firm

Being the change

1. Introduction
2. Change-challenged or change-ready?
3. Paradigm shifts in the legal services industry
4. Is your law firm trudging silently towards oblivion?
5. Playing a poor hand well

Notes

About the authors