

Table of contents

I. The business case for outsourcing of core legal service functions

Norman K Clark and Fernando Moreno

Walker Clark LLC

1. The emerging “assembly factory” model for law firms
2. What is the scope of the internal functions that a law firm should consider for outsourcing to external service providers?
3. Current examples of the outsourcing of major operating functions of law firms
4. Outsourcing as a fundamental part of sustainable profitability
5. Outsourcing as a source of competitive advantage
6. A methodology for evaluating and managing the risks

II. Case studies in outsourcing

1. Patent drafting, research, and analysis

Gaurav Khandelwal and Tushar Gupta

Intricate Research

- a. The changing nature of patent law practice
- b. Scope of services typically delivered through outsourcing
- c. “as needed” and “dedicated” service models
- d. Key impacts on law firm profitability and service quality for clients

2. Information technology systems security

Sitima Fowler and Chase Sonen

Iconic IT

- a. Recent “scandals” in this area, the financial liability and reputational risks for law firms and the reduced cost of these services
- b. Services delivered
- c. Finding the right balance between remote and in-house management of IT security
- d. Key impacts on risk management for law firms

3. Document review and computer-supported coding and analysis

Karl Schieneman

Baia do Joao Eco Pousada

- a. The impact of technology on outsourced document review in major litigation cases, and its importance in profitable due diligence services in M&A transactions
- b. Services delivered
- c. Service delivery modes
- d. Key impacts on quality assurance and price competitiveness for law firms

III. The future of outsourcing in the legal services industry

Norman K Clark and Fernando Moreno

Walker Clark LLC

1. What are the emerging opportunities for outsourcing of core legal service functions of law firms?
2. What are the central strategic, operational, and financial issues that law firms will need to address in making wise decisions about what functions to outsource and which ones to keep in-house?

About the authors

About Globe Law and Business